

Join the National Infrastructure Planning Association (NIPA)

About Us

The National Infrastructure Planning Association (NIPA) was established in November 2010 to unite individuals and organisations involved in the planning and delivery of national infrastructure projects. As these projects and their regulatory background have changed over time, NIPA has been actively involved in this process and continues to provide expert insight to government and stakeholders about how the regime is working. Our primary focus is on the regime for nationally significant infrastructure projects introduced by the Planning Act 2008 but NIPA covers all national infrastructure planning regimes. Ongoing government support for new infrastructure to assist the UK economy's continued growth and to meet the needs of the future has propelled infrastructure planning into the spotlight and NIPA is supporting its members to engage with this exciting sector.
